

Here at the Central District Health Department, we strive to be the leader in assuring a healthy community. One way we do this is by offering immunization clinics for both children and adults. Immunizations are essential in disease prevention and individuals' protection. Vaccines are responsible for the control of many infectious diseases that were once common in this country, including polio, measles, diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough), rubella (German measles), mumps, tetanus, and Haemophilus influenzae type b (Hib). We also provide information about diseases and conditions, as well as information for individuals planning a trip to a foreign country.
